

Namisha Uttamchandani of Serendipity Interiors

about a freshness into the room. So if we do the large areas like walls, ceilings and big furniture pieces in varied neutral tones and add on accents like cushions, throws, candles etc. in Very Peri, it would be safe at the same time giving your space a dramatic edge.

2. White: Very Peri can be paired with the ethereal white for a fresh, clean makeover. Remember, white needs to be the dominant colour and Very Peri should only be used as an accent colour.

3. Pink: Pairing pinks with Very Peri creates a harmonious, cohesive look. This is simply because they are analogous colours, as they sit next to each other on the colour wheel. Very Peri can be combined with a lighter, darker or brighter shade of pink depending on how bold an impact you wish to create. Again the accents can be in the form of smaller decorative items like cushions, vases, throws etc. You could do bigger pieces, but maybe few, keeping the rest of the palette neutral.

4. Blue: You can also pair Very Peri with shades of blue simply because it has undertones of this dynamic colour. If you're wanting to create a wow effect and willing to be adventurous, then think of creating zen spaces dominated by neutral hues. Also consider layering different shades stemming from the Very Peri shade. You could add furniture, pillows and other small accessories starting from dark purple, passing by Very Peri and then graduating on to lilac or lavender.

5. Orange and yellow: Pairing orange and yellow hues with Very Peri can help make each of these colours more vivid, as they are complementary and sit opposite one another on the colour wheel. It's quite a bold statement for your interiors and can be incorporated by using Very Peri paint for instance and orange and yellow accessories such as cushions and throws, paired with neutral-coloured furniture for a balance and contrast.

6. Green: We see earthy tones around us every day and these colours paired with Pantone's Very Peri can provide a balanced colour palette within your interiors. Use warm earthy tones as a backdrop to help Very Peri stand out as a focal point. Incorporate earthy coloured walls and wooden furniture and add on Very Peri decorative items.

Interiors

Royal Furniture

Homesrus

Al Huzaifa Furniture

